EXTRA. 2 O'CLOCK. ERHARDT IS OUT.

He Has Resigned, and Will Leave the Custom-House Saturday.

Not Ready to Make His Reasons Public.

His Successor Is Practically Selected, but His Name Is Kept Secret.

Col. Joel B. Erhardt's resignation as Collector of the Port of New York, to take effect Aug. 1, is the hands of President Harrison.
Although it was tendered a month ago, it has not yet been formally accepted by the President. Col. Erhardt, however, declares that his decision in this matter is irrevocable and final, and that he will leave the Custom House for good the day after tomorrow.

JOEL B. ERHARDT.

The report of the collector's resignation caused a big sensation in the old granite building in Wall street this morning, as the wholesale official slaughter which was announced late in evening.

The work of the official headman's axe was almost lost sight of in the news that the chief of the department was going out with his men, and that the action of the Administration in cutting down his staff had met with his profound disapproval.

At first even the collector's immediate subordinates refused to believe the story, for his determination has been surrounded with such close secrecy that up to last night not the faintest suspicion of his intention had got abroad.

It is perfectly true that I have resigned the collectorship," replied Col. Erhardt, calmly, to an Evening World reporter, "but I did not intend that the fact should be made public quite so soon.

"How it got out I do not know, for it was officially known to only three persons beside myself—the President, Secretary Foster and First Assistant Secretary Spaulding.

"However, these things always leak out in some mysterious way, and there is no use in my denying the report now."

"Are you prepared to make any statement as to the reasons for taking this step?" he was asked.

"Not at present," he replied, "although I may have something to say later on that point."

"Would you have tendered your resignation if the department had not ordered this large reduction in the staff at the Custom-House?"
"Well, that is rather a leading question," said Col. Erhardt, smiling, "and I must decline to answer," replied the collector, with a smile.

"Do you think that this reduction in the working force will in any way cripple the efficiency of the service?" pursued the questioner.

"Time alone will show," was the reply.

force would, in his opinion, result in seriously hampering the collector.

The policy of the Administration, however, prevailed, and as this decision was virtually an expression of lack of confidence in the collector's judgment, and an intimation that he was conducting the office in an extravagant and wasteful manner, he resolved to vindicate his position by resigning.

Some significance has been attached to the recent visit of Deacon S. V. White and Silas B. Dutcher, of Brooklyn, to President Harrison at Cape May in connection with the vacant collectorship.

It is a morning, however, that as far as Mr. Dutcher was concerned, there was no political significance in the visit. Mr.
Dutcher has recently assumed extensive business responsibilities and is not in the race.

At the time Col. Erhardt went into office there was a great deal of gossip going around about the chances of Senator J. S. Platt, of New York, and William Brockfield, chairman of the Republican County Committee, for the collector-ship. The former was supposed to be ex-Senator Platt's man. Talk about both these candidates was revived this morning.

Mr. Platt was found at his office in the United States Express Company this morning.

"The resignation of Collector Erhardt is a great surprise to me," he said to the reporter.
"It is really true?"

When told that there was no doubt about it, the collector's successor in assuming a still more pronounced air of astonishment.

In answer to further questions he declared that he had no idea who would be Col. Er-hardt's successor, and said he had not heard any names mentioned.

There was a lively commotion among the clerks in the various departments at the custom-house this morning.

The sacrifice demanded from Washington had been made, and eighty-six official heads had fallen under the dismantling axe.

The victims were selected by the several Deputy collectors, whose Deputy collectors themselves were not removed by the decree which abolished their offices.

Among the decapitated were Deputy Collector Milton M. Peener, of the second division, with a salary of $3,000;

Arthur P. Kelly, of the fourth division, salary $1,800 each; Clarence H. Hallen, clerk, fifth division, salary $1,200; Clerk William H. Dougherty and Dennis J. O'Brien, of the sixth division, salary $1,200 each; Frank Wilkinson and John W. Emmerson, clerks of the seventh division, salary $1,200 each; Clerk Robert R. Thies, of the eighth division, salary $1,000; Clerk Samuel Finkenberg, ninth division, salary $1,400; each, and Clerks George F. Maher and Albert J. Felling, of the same division, salary $1,200 each.

Two other subordinate had their salaries reduced from $100 to $400 per year.

The removals were made apparently without much regard to the political affiliations of the victims. It is true that the most Democratic of those who lost their scalps are Democrats, the most important offices which have been declared vacant were filled by Republicans.

In point of numbers also, the lines are pretty equally divided. The removal of Deputy collector Milton M. Peener, of the second division, was expected. In fact he has been talked of resigning. He is the proprietor of an extensive patent medicine business in Fredonia, N. Y., and can afford to give up his Custom-House position.

The others, however, are not so fortunate.
They are all men of some standing in the big world of this morning.

The Public Stores suffer more than any other division of the service, more than thirty men having been dropped from the list.

Appraiser Cooper is now in Washington, in response to a summons by Secretary Foster.
He said that a further reduction will be made in his staff.

Lawyers and Politicians Pay the Last Honors to the Dead.

Mayor Grant, President Barker, of the Board of Taxes and Assessments, Comptroller Meyers and a host of other officials officially attended the funeral of the late Richard S. New-combe this morning.

The funeral services over the distinguished lawyer were held at the house where he died, 303 Madison avenue.

The house was thronged with well-known citizens, lawyers and politicians predominantly.

The funeral services were simple and impressive.

Among the high bearers were Mayor Grant, Comptroller Meyers, Col. John R. Feltz, District Attorney Leacy, Nicholas, Surrogate, Recorder Smith, Police Justice Andrew J. White, Thomas Gilroy, ex-Assistant Mayor McAfferty, Judge Donohue, Eugene M.
Barb, James A. Fitzpatrick and John L. Carrick.
Among those who have sent messages of sympathy are Judge Martineau, Mayor Laudman and Henry Siegel, ex-Mayor of London City.

John R. Reed, the Oldest Actor, Dead.

Alderman John Reed, aged 84, died at his home, 101 West 10th street, New York, at sixty-seven years.

Reed was a native of Philadelphia, and was the father of Richard Reed, the comedian.
The old man's residence on the stage was quite as varied as that of any of his contemporaries.

Identified by His Widow.

The man who dropped dead at the Ninth in a Third Avenue elevated car at the Ninth street station yesterday has been identified as Louis Edelson, a wholesale tobacconist, whose home was at 413 Lexington avenue.
His widow claimed the body.

Found the Body of a Baby Girl.

Christian Goyert, of 41 East Eleventh street, who was on duty at the foot street station yesterday, found this morning the body of a seven-months old girl body. It was sent to the Morgue.

Thrown from His Wagon.

Louis Edelson, of 39 West street, a driver, was thrown from his wagon in front of Washington street this morning. He received a number of severe lacerations and was sent to St. Vincent's Hospital.

MILLER'S MYSTERY EXPLODED Lizzie Juggled the Coal that Fell on Their Floor.

She Confessed Her Guilt and Was Banished at Once.

Coal has ceased to go through the windows of Druggist Miller's flat at 408 West Fifty-first street.

As a matter of fact, the showers of black diamonds, which distressed and mystified the occupants of the apartments, did not come through the windows at all.

A confession was last evening extorted from Lizzie Hau, the Miller's innocent-looking domestic, and that confession completely cleared up the supposed mystery.

The old stories and visions of the police force, after having investigated the circumstances, promptly declared that Lizzie was the culprit, but the Millers knew better. Their stupid little domestic was, they declared, too stupid for such tricks, and they rather imagined to a belief that she was doing something to do with the tumbling of coals on their kitchen floor.

The police guards were withdrawn from the Miller flat yesterday, but the druggist did not abandon his determination to get a glimpse of the coal-throwing spy. He called the girl casher in his store as well as his drug clerk into this new service, and stationed the clerk under the kitchen table and the casher under the bed in an adjoining room. Mrs. Miller kept watch from another corner of the flat.

Lizzie, who had been seen on an errand, knew nothing of this arrangement. She was naturally kept in ignorance of it, but the deception came before the new system of espionage could be explained to her.

When the girl came to the door, she was called at the flat by the druggist, and she came in to see what was the matter. She was in conversation with Mrs. Miller, when Lizzie came in, and then she made a dash for the door, and she was caught at the door.

The clerk, from his position under the table, saw the girl make a dash for the door, and he was in conversation with Mrs. Miller, when Lizzie came in, and then she made
a dash for the door, and she was caught
at the door.

Salisbury may be second and Requefort ought to beat the others.

At Brighton Beach.

The track was very busy at Brighton Beach today, and the heavy programme will be somewhat reduced by scratches. The feature of the card at the beach will be the match between Kingston and Tulla Blackburn, but there is a probability that this race will be scratched. Kingston, who is the favorite, is a weight, distance and form, the winners will be Kingston and Tulla Blackburn.

NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, JULY 29, 1891.

POINTERS ON THE RACES. Tipsters' Opinions on the Various Winners To-Day.

Programme of the Several Events To Be Run Off.

The feature of the card at Morris Park today is the match race between Tenny and Longstreet. As is well known, there was a clause in the agreement which stipulated that the race must be run on a dry track. It rained heavily last night and is still raining, so that the match will probably be postponed until another day. The heavy track will, no doubt, cause many scratches in the rest of the programme, but the races have lined well and should furnish interesting races even if there are numerous withdrawals. The first race on the card is a dash of six furlongs, for which the following are entered:

First Race—Six furlongs.
Chesapeake, Silver Prince, 100 Dalyrath, Houston, 100

Justice Lawrence, of the Supreme Court, decided that as the County Democracy was represented by the State organization of the Police in convention and on the State Commissioners, it must be represented as against the County Democracy, which had united with the Republicans on a local ticket.

The law, however, prevented the Police Commissioners from making such a division.
